

Bio

Dimitris Riziotis is a lawyer specializing in antitrust and regulation.

He holds a law degree from the University of Athens and continued his studies and research at the University of Munich and at the Max-Planck Institute for Innovation and Competition, earning a Ph.D. in competition law.

Dimitris is working at the Hellenic Telecommunications Organization, dealing with competition law and regulation of electronic communications.