

Fabrizio Bocchetti

Managing Director and General Manager of Merck Greece & Cyprus

Fabrizio Bocchetti is the Managing Director and General Manager of Merck Greece & Cyprus. He is a senior pharmaceutical executive with more than 20 years of international experience across the healthcare and life sciences sectors. Throughout his career, he has developed deep knowledge of the pharmaceutical market, as well as broad expertise in products and services across multiple business areas.

Fabrizio has built his professional path at the intersection of healthcare innovation, business transformation, and people-centered leadership. Under his coordination, Merck Greece & Cyprus has further strengthened its focus on innovation, sustainability, workplace excellence, and strategic partnerships with key stakeholders across the healthcare ecosystem.

Before assuming his current role, Fabrizio held several leadership positions within Merck Italy, leading multiple business units and cross-functional organizations across different therapeutic areas. Throughout his career, he has successfully driven business growth, organizational transformation, and high-performing teams.

He holds Master's degree in Mechanical Engineering from "La Sapienza" University in Rome and a Master in Business Administration from "Koç" University in Istanbul. Passionate about collaboration between industry and institutions, Fabrizio actively contributes to discussions on healthcare sustainability, leadership, talent development, innovation, and the future of life sciences, with a strong commitment to improving patient access and outcomes.